THE SUM OF ITS PARTS

Distinguished, lavish and chic—words that describe Dana John Lance's home furnishings space in Los Angeles

I can't stop admiring the 1970s Tommaso Barbi designed "Italian Brass Floor Lamps" that are glowing exquisitely in the Dana John window display. At five feet tall, the official description says nothing about how captivating they really are, with their thin, delicately curved brass stems holding one massive leaf on their end. Though their functionality is questionable, laughed proprietor Dana John Lance, they are the Hollywood-glam style the owners effortlessly aspire to. ▷
